STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

FOREWORD

The Division of Vital Statistics of our State Board of Health has been working to complete records of births and deaths in the State Office and has a complete record from 1911 to date and a complete record of marriages from 1913 to date.

The 1941 session of the legislature passed a Delayed Birth Registration Bill which provides the method of obtaining a birth certificate where none is now on file.

The Historical Records Survey in Kansas herewith presents a volume which lists the various records and their location in Kansas. This work has assumed greater significance by reason of the Social Security, Old Age Benefits, and National Defense Legislation.

Because of national defense contracts, employers are demanding birth certificates and other vital statistics records as proof of citizenship prior to employing any citizen. This has created an overwhelming demand for copies of Vital Statistics Records.

The necessity for such a directory, as found in this volume, has been evident for years. No provision, however, was made for assembling this data. Unless one has attempted to secure a copy of these old records, he can form no idea as to the amount of work involved in doing so. Unless he has attempted to establish the fact shown on these old records, he can form no idea as to the value of this information.

Respectfully submitted

PREFACE

The Kansas Historical Records Survey project was organized in February 1936 as a unit of the Works Progress Administration. It operates as a State-wide project under the sponsorship of The Kansas State Historical Society.

The Survey has had as its primary objective the preparation of inventories of the records of the State, the counties, the municipalities, and other local governmental subdivisions. In addition to listing public records the Survey also has listed church records in some localities, and has inventoried all known material, excepting periodical publications, produced by the printing presses in Kansas prior to 1877, as found in the principal libraries of the State. Prior to the outbreak of war, the major effort of the Survey program was centered in the publication of inventories of county records which are unique in Kansas. The program has since been re-directed for war effort. This work embraces two principal undertakings -- inventories of space and storage facilities in buildings for the emergency removal of valuable records, archives, and museum objects from exposed areas; and preparation of guides to vital statistics records. Inventories of space and storage facilities have been instituted at the request of the Committee on Conservation of Cultural Resources, Executive Office of the President, in cooperation with the work of the State committee.

The very nature of the work of the Survey has made it adaptable for research in county and local governmental archives, and in obtaining not only a complete listing of the records, but special types of information pertaining to the records and the functions of the governmental subdivision.

In September 1940, in conjunction with the work of the Vital Statistics Division of the Bureau of the Census with the National Defense Program, The Historical Records Survey was requested to prepare a check list of existing State and local public records of births, marriages, deaths, and divorces. At that time there was no known list of such vital statistics records in Kansas. It was known that from 1885 to 1911 a State law had required physicians and midwives to report births and deaths to the local boards of health, and that assessors has been required to gather such information and file it annually with the local board. It also was known that in isolated instances cities had kept such records under ordinances.

As a result of its field work since its inception, and through a complete listing of the records of more than half the counties in the State, The Historical Records Survey already had in its files the titles and inclusive dates of the vital statistics records included among the archives of the counties listed. To complete the check list required, the Survey immediately put out a dragnet to determine the location, dates, and precise nature of all vital statistics records not theretofore listed. This entailed an examination of such records belonging to most of the more than 500 incorporated cities, as well as those of many counties. Through assignment to this task of the field workers in their respective counties, The Historical Records Survey quickly completed the first check list in the State's history making known the whereabouts of local vital statistics records in each county and community. The data on births thus gathered was printed by the Bureau of the Census in abbreviated form.

In February 1941 the State legislature enacted a law authorizing the State Board of Health to prescribe regulations for obtaining delayed registration of births. The resulting standardization necessarily resulted in more exacting requirements for proof of the facts of birth. In the last year there has been a four-fold increase in applications for such registrations.

To assist in meeting the heavily increased demand from all quarters for data concerning the facts of birth and proof of citizenship, and upon the recommendation of the Bureau of the Census, The Historical Records Survey has prepared this Guide to Public Vital Statistics Records in Kansas. Incorporated therein are the contents of the original check list prepared in the closing months of 1940 and the early months of 1941, together with all the data since gathered. Records are described in entries whose style is formalized to show the nature of the record, the dates for which it exists, the quantity and location, the officer of custody, and whenever possible, the cost of obtaining certified copies. This volume also includes essays outlining the development and history of the requirements for recording public vital statistics in Kansas, and a description of the methods employed, in order to make known to the reader all possible sources of such data, as well as the methods to be pursued for obtaining copies of records.

Although copies of local birth registrations prior to 1911 will not in themselves serve as birth certificates under existing laws, such a registration may be used as one of the documents required for obtaining a State-issued certificate and registration under the present vital statistics law, and also may offer a source for obtaining additional data needed to complete the requirements.

It is hoped that this Guide to Public Vital Statistics Records in Kansas, the first ever published in the State, will prove of material assistance to many Kansans in establishing the facts of their birth and citizenship, as well as to others who have occasion to consult such records.

The records listed in this volume were inventoried under the immediate supervision of Mrs. Margaret Grandle, Miss Alice M. Nickerson, Mrs. Ann W. Davison, Floyd J. Sutterlin, Ralph L. Strunk, Homer L. Hensey, and Frank Ventura. The record entries were prepared by A. L. Diamond. The essays were prepared by Walter M. Markley, under whose supervision the editorial work was performed. The stencils for mimeographing were cut by Rufus M Stone and Walter C. Reich.

Acknowledgment is made of the services of the Kansas Library Project in binding this volume through the authorization of Mrs. Mary Parkman, State Director of the Division of Community Service Programs. Assistance of the Museum Project which made the cover design and the photographic reproductions of the certificate and license forms is likewise acknowledged. Helpful suggestions regarding the style and contents of this volume were made by Sargent B. Child, Director of The Historical Records Survey Projects.

The various publications of the Survey are issued in mimeographed form for distribution to Government agencies, libraries, and historical societies in Kansas, and to a limited number of libraries and government offices outside the State. A list of the other publications of the Survey appears at the end of this volume. Requests for information concerning the work of the Survey and its publications should be addressed to Harold J. Henderson, State Supervisor, 912 Kansas Avenue, Topeka, Kansas.

To the State, city, and county officials, and to all others whose cooperation was received in the preparation of this volume, the State Supervisor and his staff extend their gratitude. This volume is a product of Official Project No. 165-1-82-274.

This volume lists the public vital statistics records of Kansas in four divisions --- births, marriages, deaths, and divorces. In each division the records in custody of State agencies are listed first. Thereafter, birth and death records are listed alphabetically by names of counties and thereunder alphabetically by names of cities and towns. Marriage and divorce records are listed alphabetically by names of counties. Under each agency the records are listed in chronological order.

The first item of information shown in each entry is the inclusive dates for which the record exists, followed by the nature of the record and the quantity of volumes or containers. If the record is contained in another series for a part or all of its existence, the quantity follows the title or statement of the nature of the series, to which it applies. If the title of a volume or container is materially different from the title of the record, the variant title and its inclusive dates are given. The arrangement of the record is shown next. If no statement is made concerning the method of indexing, it may be presumed that the record is not indexed. Any additional pertinent information follows the statement of arrangement or indexing. Next is shown the title of the officer having custody of the record, followed by the charge made for certified copies thereof. In the case of divorces the title of the officer of custody and the charge for certified copies follows the listing of records for the entire county. Costs of copies of marriage license stubs are not given, as the license or record copy thereof is preferable evidence. Where costs of other documents are not given, they could not be ascertained in time for publication.

THE EVOLUTION OF REGISTRATION METHODS AND LAWS

The New Importance of Vital Statistics Records

The importance of vital statistics records, long recognized by economists and historians, has been brought home with stunning force to the rank and file of the American people during the last few years. Beginning with World War I, which made it necessary for large numbers of persons wishing to participate in various war activities to procure information concerning their lineages, the value of vital statistics records was subsequently enhanced by enactment of the social welfare and social security laws. Now, with the Nation at war with the Axis powers, such records have become of supreme importance to all employees of contractors and subcontractors of the War and Navy Departments, to applicants for Federal positions, and to volunteers for the armed forces in establishing facts of birth and citizenship.

It is estimated that approximately 60,000,000 persons in the United States cannot produce satisfactory proof of the facts of birth. Within three weeks after the beginning of the war between the United States and Japan there was approximately a fourfold increase in demands upon state bureaus of vital statistics for proof of the facts of birth. This was in addition to an equivalent increase during the preceding year.[1] Only a few states in the Union have birth records on file for dates prior to the beginning of the present century.

Statutory provisions for the recording of marriages and divorces have existed in Kansas since the beginning of county government in 1855. Most churches, especially Roman Catholic and Episcopal, have kept their own vital statistics records, some as far back as pre-Territorial times. In a few instances city councils required physicians to report deaths of persons attended by them who died of contagious or infectious disease. But no step toward the uniform public registration of births and deaths was taken until 1885, when the State Board of Health was created. Even then the system did not assure complete and adequate registration, nor was there provision for reporting to a central bureau. In 1911 the division of vital statistics was created in the State Board of Health and the present system adopted for the public registration of births, deaths, and marriages. Divorces are recorded only in the counties where the decrees are granted, and are not reported to the division of vital statistics.

The Evolution of Registration Methods and Laws - Recording of Marriages; City Records

Recording of Marriages

The first Territorial legislative assembly required that every person performing the marriage ceremony should keep a record thereof and within 3 months forward a certificate to the county recorder, who was required to record it in a book kept for that purpose, within 1 month after its receipt.[1] The assembly of 1859 required that the returns be made to the newly created office of county clerk, and recorded by that officer rather than by the county recorder.[2] No license to enter the marriage relation was required until 1867, when it was decreed that the contracting parties first obtain a license from the probate judge of the proper county.[3] The same act required the county clerks to turn over to the probate judges of their respective counties within 30 days all the marriage records then in their custody. The probate judge must keep a correct copy of every license issued by him, together with the return endorsed on it by the person performing the ceremony.[4] From 1867 to 1913 the person performing the ceremony was required to return the license, with his endorsement, to the probate judge.[5] In 1913 the law was amended to require the license to be forwarded direct by the person performing the ceremony to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics,[6] but in 1917 it again was changed to require the person performing the ceremony to return the license to the probate judge, who in turn forwards it to the State Registrar after entering it and the return on his marriage record.[7]

City Records

For several years before the State itself took steps toward the registration of vital statistics, several cities of Kansas had boards of health and "health committees". A legislative enactment approved February 26, 1866 made it the duty of the mayor of each incorporated city of the State to appoint, subject to approval of the city council, five or seven persons "who shall constitute and be denominated the board of health".[1] The principal activities of these boards, however, concerned sanitation and the control of contagious and infectious diseases. It was the public health question which first led to regulations regarding the removal and burial of dead bodies. The City of Wichita on April 9, 1883 adopted an ordinance making unlawful the burial in, or removal from the city, of any dead human body until a permit should have been obtained from the city clerk. The clerk issued his permit only upon receipt of a certificate of death signed by the attending physician, or some other person cognizant of the facts. The city clerk was required to keep a record of such permits in "a suitable book to be kept for that purpose".[2]

An ordinance adopted by the city of Topeka June 20, 1881 provided that every practicing physician should report to the city board of health, at such times and on such forms as it might prescribe, all cases of pestilential, infectious, and contagious disease attended by him, and also should report in writing to the board, when it so required, the death of any patient who had died from any disease.[3]

But no attention was given the reporting of births until after enactment of the first State registration law of 1885. The city of Topeka on July 17, 1888 adopted an ordinance requiring physicians, accoucheurs, and midwives to report to the city board of health within 24 hours the birth of every child attended by them, giving the date of birth and the names of the parents.[4] In 1893 the city required on such reports additional information regarding the race, color, nationality, and sex of the infant, and the street number where the birth occurred.[5] It was not until May 26, 1909 that the city of Wichita, revising its health ordinance, incorporated provisions for the reporting of births, and specifically requiring that the name of the child be registered.[6] This ordinance was repealed by another adopted June 1, 1936 in which all reference to births and deaths is omitted, except for the proper handling of the body of a person who had died from a contagious disease and the conduct of the funeral, all other regulations apparently being left to the State law.[1]

Kansas City apparently never adopted an ordinance regulating the reporting of births and deaths, and a complete record has been kept only since 1911, complying with the State vital statistics law. The earliest birth and death records of the city date to 1892, but are incomplete. Some physicians who were interested in making it compulsory by ordinance reported some births, but recorded little information.[2]

Church Records

Long before records of vital statistics were kept by any governmental units of Kansas, churches of various denominations were keeping more or less complete records of their own of births, baptisms, marriages, and deaths of their members, which by statute are considered as legal evidence in court. A law passed in 1868 provides that "when by ordinance or custom of any religious society or congregation in this State, a register is required to be kept of marriages, births, baptisms, deaths, or interments, such register shall be admitted as evidence. Copies of such register, certified by the pastor or other head of the society or congregation, or by the clerk or other keeper of such register, and verified by his affidavit, also must be admitted in evidence.[3]

Catholic churches and Episcopal churches in particular usually have quite complete records of this nature. The Church of the Immaculate Conception in St. Marys, for example, has presumably complete records of baptisms, 1832--; marriages, 1836--, and deaths, 1837--, of its members. The First Congregational Church of Emporia has a list of members and infant baptisms dating from 1858. Records of numerous other churches antedate enactment of the present State vital statistics law in 1911.

First State Registration Law

The first step toward State supervision of the registration of vital statistics came in 1885 with the creation of the State Board of Health. The act provided that the State Board "shall supervise the registration of marriages, births, and deaths . . . and the Secretary of said Board shall supervise the registration of the vital statistics of the State. They shall obtain the blank forms necessary for obtaining and preserving such records and forward such of them to the health officers of local boards as may be required by physicians, assessors, local boards, and others whose duty it is to gather information in relation to the vital statistics of the State".[1]

The law designated boards of county commissioners as local boards of health for their respective counties and required each board to elect a physician, preference being given to adepts in sanitary science, as county health officer and ex officio a member of the local board. "The local boards of health hereby created," the law provides, "shall not supercede or in any way interfere with such boards established by municipal regulations in any of the counties of this State; but all local boards of health of this State, created by this act or existing by authority of municipal law, shall be governed by the provisions of this act."[2]

The county health officer was required to "receive and distribute without delay in the county for which he is appointed, all forms from the State Board of Health to the rightful persons, and all returns from physicians, assessors, and local boards to the State Board of Health".[3] It was made "the duty of assessors of personal property in the several townships and wards of cities throughout the State, annually, to collect such information as to marriages, births, and deaths as may be required by the State Board of Health and report the same at the time and in the manner prescribed by the said Board, to the local board of health".[4]

Under authority of this law the State Board prescribed the forms of certificates upon which physicians and midwives should report births and deaths occurring in their practice, and upon which persons performing the marriage ceremony should report marriages to the local boards. A penalty of $10 was decreed for failure to make the returns within the prescribed time. The local health officers were required to report these enrollments monthly to the State Board.[5]

The Evolution of Registration Methods and Laws - The Vital Statistics Law

In practice, these returns apparently were made in most counties to the county clerk, who is required to keep the records of the board of county commissioners,[1] which in turn constitutes the county board of health.[2] In most counties the county clerk kept a record of these returns in a book titled "Vital Statistics," or "Record of Vital Statistics", while in other counties the record was kept by the health officer himself.

The Vital Statistics Law

This system continued without change until 1911, when the division of vital statistics was created in the State Board of Health and the present registration system adopted. The 1911 law specifies that "it shall be the duty of the State Board of Health to have charge of the State system of registration of births and deaths; to formulate and prepare the necessary methods, forms, and blanks for obtaining and preserving such records and to insure the faithful registration of the same in the townships, cities, counties, and in the central division of vital statistics of the State Board of Health at the capitol of the State. The said Board shall be charged with the uniform and thorough enforcement of the law throughout the State, and is authorized and directed to make and publish uniform rules and regulations not in conflict with the laws of the State, for carrying out the provisions of this act, which rules and regulations shall become effective when published in the official State paper".[3]

The act provides that the Secretary of the State Board "shall have general supervision over the central division of vital statistics which is hereby authorized to be established by said Board, and which shall be under the immediate direction of the State Registrar of Vital Statistics whom the State Board of Health shall appoint, upon the recommendation of the Secretary, within 90 days after the taking effect of this law, and who shall be a competent vital statistician".[4]

The law specifies that the State shall be divided into such registration districts as the State Board may designate from time to time,[5] and that all births occurring in the State shall be promptly registered in the districts in which they occur.[1] At first the city clerk of each incorporated city was designated as a local registrar, with the provision that he might "issue burial permits and receive birth certificates for any part of his county".[2] In 1913 the city clerks' jurisdiction was limited to their own cities and the townships in which their cities were located. In townships wherein there was no incorporated city the township clerk was designated as local registrar.[3] In 1918 the law again was amended to provide that "the city clerk of each incorporated city shall be the local registrar of vital statistics of such city and such additional territory as may be designated, and where necessary the township clerk or other member of the township board shall be the local registrar for such territory as may be designated. Local registrars shall issue burial or removal permits and receive birth certificates for their respective districts."[4]

Every physician, midwife, and undertaker was required to register his or her name with the local registrar within 30 days after taking effect of the act. Local registrars must report to the State Registrar within 30 days after the close of each year the names of all physicians, midwives, and undertakers registered with them the preceding year.[5]

Under the vital statistics law "the local registrars are hereby charged with the strict and thorough enforcement of the provisions of this act in their districts, under the supervision and direction of the State Registrar, and they shall make an immediate report to the State Registrar of any violation of this law coming to their notice by observation or upon complaint of any person, or otherwise. The State Registrar is hereby charged with the thorough and efficient execution of the provisions of this act in every part of the State, and with supervisory power over local registrars, to the end that all of the requirements shall be uniformly complied with. He shall have authority to investigate cases of irregularity or violation of the law, personally or by accredited representative, and all registrars shall aid him, upon request, in such investigations. When he shall deem it necessary he shall report cases of violation of any of the provisions of this act to the county attorney, with a statement of the facts and circumstances; and when any such case is reported to them by the State Registrar all county attorneys, or officials acting in that capacity, shall forthwith initiate and promptly follow up the necessary court proceedings against the parties responsible for the alleged violations of the law, and upon request of the State Registrar the Attorney General shall likewise assist in the enforcement of the provisions of this act.[1]

"Upon the refusal or neglect of any physician, midwife, or other person in attendance upon any birth or death to make proper report to the local registrar as required by the provisions of this act it shall be the duty of the local registrar to secure such facts as may be pertinent thereto and fill the blanks to the best of his knowledge, and to secure from the parent or householder an affidavit or statement setting forth the fact of the birth or death, and the fact that the said physician, midwife, or other person was in attendance. The State Registrar is required to "prepare and have printed and supply to all the registrars all blanks and forms used in registering, recording, and preserving the records, or in otherwise carrying out the purposes of this act, and shall prepare and issue such detailed information as may be required to secure the uniform observance of its provisions and the maintenance of a perfect system of registration, and no other blanks shall be used than those supplied by the State Registrar. He shall carefully examine the certificates received monthly from the local registrars, and if any such are incomplete or unsatisfactory he shall require such further information to be furnished as may be necessary to make the records complete and satisfactory, and all physicians, midwives, informants, or undertakers connected with any case, and all other persons having knowledge of the facts, are hereby required to furnish such information as they may possess regarding any birth or death upon the demand of the State Registrar in person, by mail, or through the local registrar. He shall, further, arrange and permanently preserve the certificates in a systematic manner, and shall prepare and maintain a comprehensive and continuous card index of all births and deaths registered. The cards to show the name of the child or deceased, place and date of birth or death, number of certificate, and the place in which it is contained".[1]

In practice, the birth certificates, death certificates, and marriage licenses and returns received from the local registrars and probate judges by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics are filed in file drawers, alphabetically by names of counties and thereunder numerically by certificate and license numbers, each type of certificate being kept separate. They are separately indexed, as received, in a card file, the births alphabetically by names of children, the deaths alphabetically by names of decedents, and the marriages alphabetically by names of brides and grooms, regardless of county. Each index card, however, bears the number of the county in an alphabetical arrangement, and the serial number of the certificate or license. As rapidly as possible certificates and licenses are bound in numerical order in volumes of 250 each, and the volumes filed alphabetically by names of counties. The names in the card index are transcribed into volumes, chronologically by years, and alphabetically thereunder by names of children or decedents, or brides and grooms. At the present time the births have been indexed in volume form up to 1934; deaths to 1935, and marriages up to 1940. The card indexes are up to date. Since 1911 more than 9,366 volumes of birth, marriage, and death records have accumulated in the custody of the State Registrar.

Recording of Divorces

No law regarding the recording of divorces specifically ever has been enacted. In this respect no distinction is made between divorce suits and other civil actions. Since the beginning of Statehood in 1861 the power to grant divorces has been vested in the district courts exclusively.[2] The clerk of the court is required to preserve all the papers filed in each civil action, keeping them together in an envelope or jacket labeled with the title of the cause.[3] He also must enter on the journal all proceedings of the court each day, and all orders of the judge at chambers or in vacation.[4]

The Evolution of Registration Methods and Laws - Certified Copies of Records

Certified Copies of Records

Persons requiring them can obtain certified copies of practically any extant birth, marriage, death, or divorce record from the official having it in custody. The State Registrar will issue certified copies of birth or death certificates for a fee of 50 cents,[1] or a certified copy of a marriage certificate for a fee of $1.[2] Copies of marriage licenses or entries on the marriage records for any dates for which the records exist also may be obtained from the probate judges for fees ranging from 25 cents to $1. In a few counties no charge is made. Certified copies of divorce decrees, or papers filed in divorce cases, may be obtained from the clerk of the district court of the proper county for a fee varying from 7 cents per folio and 25 cents for certification to $1.25 for the first folio and 50 cents for each additional folio. In a very few instances no charge is made.

In many cases the local registrars will not issue certified copies of births or deaths occurring after 1911, such copies being obtainable from the State Registrar. In nearly all cases, however, city and county clerks, health officers, and registrars having custody of records of births and deaths occurring prior to 1911 will issue a certified copy for a stipulated fee, and in some cases without charge.

Copies of marriage records, properly certified, are admissible in any court as prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated when obtained from a probate judge[3] or the State Registrar of Vital Statistics.[4] Properly certified birth and death records obtained from the State Registrar also are so accepted.[5] An older law provides that copies of any paper or record required by law to be made or kept in the office of any official, when duly certified by the officer having legal custody of the record, shall be accepted as evidence with the same effect as the original.[6]

The Evolution of Registration Methods and Laws - Delayed Registration of Birth

The law of 1911 provided that "the State Registrar shall upon request furnish any applicant a certified copy of the record of any birth or death registered under the provisions of this act, for the making and certification of which he shall be entitled to a fee of 50 cents to be paid by the applicant, except that one certified copy of the record of death of soldiers, sailors, or marines who have served in the army or navy of the United States at the time of war shall be furnished without charge when requested for the purpose of making claims for pensions, and any such copy of the record of birth or death, when properly certified by the State Registrar to be a true copy thereof, shall be prima facie evidence in all courts and places of the facts stated therein. For any search of the files and records when no certified copy is made, the State Registrar shall be entitled to a fee of 25 cents for each hour or fractional hour of time of search, to be paid by the applicant . . .".[1]

The legislature of 1925 amended this provision so that "as many certified copies of the record of death of soldiers, sailors, or marines who have served in the army or navy of the United States at the time of war as may be necessary or requested, shall be furnished without charge, when so requested for the purpose of making claim for pension," and also "as many certified copies as necessary of the record of the birth of children" of any such veterans shall be furnished free of charge for this purpose.[2] The legislature of 1935 made another amendment which provides that records of illegitimate births "shall be furnished only to the foster parents of any illegitimate child with the name or names of the natural parents deleted therefrom, and which shall be in the same form as a copy of the record furnished for a legitimate child".[3]

The legislature of 1941 provided for free certified copies of birth certificates for persons in the active military or naval service, or in the nursing services of the army or navy, when requested for the purpose of proving citizenship or making claim for pension.

Delayed Registration of Birth

Thousands of Kansans now are faced with the problem of establishing facts of birth, some for social security purposes, some to engage in various governmental and war activities, and others to obtain citizenship papers. This is a simple matter for persons born subsequent to July 1, 1911 and whose birth certificates were filed within 4 years after birth occurred, inasmuch as a copy of the certificate can be obtained by application to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics at Topeka and payment of a fee of 50 cents. Persons born prior to July 1, 1911 will face a more difficult problem. In order to have a delayed certificate of birth, as it is called, registered with the State vital statistics division, it is necessary to prove facts of birth by affidavits and supporting documentary evidence.

In view of the heavily increasing demands for such registrations, the State legislature of 1941 authorized the State Board of Health to adopt and enforce regulations governing the delayed registration and proof of birth of persons born in Kansas prior to July 1, 1911, or persons born in Kansas but whose birth certificates were not filed with the local or State Registrar within 4 years from the date of birth. Subsequently the State Board, by resolution, adopted rules which must be adhered to by applicants for registration.

An applicant for the registration of a delayed certificate of birth, on behalf of himself or another person, must make application either to the State Registrar or to any local registrar of vital statistics, and fill out the application form which will be furnished to him. The form calls for a statement by the applicant, under oath, of the facts of birth, including the place and date, and his sex and color; the full name of the father and full maiden name of the mother; their birthplaces, ages, color, and occupations, and their residence at the time of the birth; whether there was a multiple birth, and the number in order of birth.

In addition to his personal statement the applicant must obtain at least two affidavits, on forms provided for him, and submit at least two pieces of documentary evidence to substantiate the place and date of birth. The affidavits must be subscribed by the attending physician or midwife, the father or mother, or some person present at the time of birth, or who lived in the community at the time of birth. Space also is provided for the affiants to show clearly and fully the basis of their knowledge of the facts.

The documentary evidence must be the originals of, or certified or photostated copies of, written or printed documents at least 5 years old at the time of the application, and which show either the birth date or the age of the applicant at the time the document was made. Types of records acceptable as documentary evidence include the physician's office record of the birth; a hospital, nursing, or clinic record; an insurance policy or bank account, or similar record; a baptismal record; printed notices of the birth; dated letters or telegrams concerning the birth; birthday books; records from a Federal, State, or local census; a family Bible record, if written in ink and clearly made before the fourth birthday of the child; school records; the age statement of a parent on the birth certificate of his or her child; a marriage or other license; passports; employment records; military records; naturalization papers and immigration records; or voting registration records. In cases of applicants under 12 years old the documentary evidence may be waived.

In the event the applicant cannot obtain the proper affidavits as required, he may submit an additional piece of documentary evidence at least 5 years old for each affidavit not made. On the other hand, if it is impossible to submit two pieces of satisfactory documentary evidence, the applicant may submit one, and an additional affidavit to take its place. Failure to answer all questions in the application form, or to submit the affidavits and documentary evidence as required, constitutes grounds for the State Registrar's refusal to register the birth.

Upon receipt of the application and satisfactory proof of birth, together with a fee of $1, the State Registrar will file and register the delayed certificate of birth. If the applicant desires a certified copy, he may obtain it upon payment of an additional 50 cents fee. The applicant, or other person in his behalf, must bear all the expense of providing the completed application form, including notarization of the affidavits, the certified or photostated copies of documentary evidence, or of aid in properly completing the form.

Although registration under the law of 1885 cannot be regarded as complete and adequate in most counties, a large number of applicants for delayed registration of birth will be able to obtain certified copies of their birth registration from the local officials of the counties or cities in which they were born. Such certificates will be accepted by the State Registrar as one of the pieces of documentary evidence. An application for delayed registration should not be made out for a birth occurring after July 1, 1911 unless the applicant has been informed by the State Registrar that the certificate is not on file. Persons born outside the State must obtain their certificates from the State in which they were born.

BIRTH RECORDS

No general statutory provisions for the registration of births existed in Kansas prior to 1885. In that year the legislature created the State Board of Health[1] and decreed that it should "supervise the registration of marriages, births, and deaths . . . and the Secretary of said board shall supervise the registration of the vital statistics of the State."[2] Boards of county commissioners were designated as local boards of health and required to appoint a health officer.[3]

Forms for the reporting of births were prescribed by the State Board and forwarded to the local health officers, whose duty it was to distribute them to physicians, midwives, assessors, and others charged with the responsibility of reporting births. It was required that these returns be made to the local health officer, who in turn was required to report them to the State Board.[4] A penalty of $10 was fixed for physicians, midwives, and others for failing to make the reports on time.[5]

In 1911, when the Division of Vital Statistics was created in the State Board of Health, the legislature made provision for registration with this central bureau of all births occurring in the State,[6] and decreed "that all births that occur in the State shall be promptly registered in the districts in which they occur"[7] by the local registrar.

The law specifies "that it shall be the duty of the attending physician or midwife to file a certificate of birth, properly and completely filled out, giving all the particulars required by this act and the rules and regulations of the State Board of Health, with the local registrar of the district in which the birth occurs, within 10 days after the date of the birth; and if there be no attending physician or midwife, then it shall be the duty of the father or mother of the child, householder, or other person in charge of the property, manager or superintendent of public or private institution in which the birth occurred, to notify the local registrar within 10 days after the birth of the fact that such birth occurred. It shall then, in such cases, be the duty of the local registrar to procure the necessary information and signature to make a proper certificate of birth; provided, that when any certificate of birth of a living child is presented without statement of the given name, then the local registrar shall make out and deliver to the informant a special blank for the supplemental report of the given name of the child, which shall be filled out as directed and returned to the registrar as soon as the child shall be named. The original certificate of birth shall not be considered complete until the supplemental report is filled out, or the blank returned with the statement, 'died unnamed'".[1]

Until 1930 no distinction was made, in filing the certificates in the office of the State Registrar, between stillbirths and live births. Since 1930, however, they have been kept separately. Formerly, both a certificate of birth and a certificate of death were filed in a case of stillbirth.

Likewise, until 1935, no distinction was made between legitimate and illegitimate births. An enactment by the 1935 legislature provides that "the record of an illegitimate birth shall be filed and kept by the State Registrar and not by any local registrar of the territory in which the birth occurred. Such illegitimate birth record shall be kept in a separate file and shall not be subject to public inspection nor shall copies thereof be issued to any person other than a foster parent, or the natural parents if not adopted, except upon order of a court of competent jurisdiction".[2] Local registrars keep copies of the certificates of live births and stillbirths.

The form prescribed by the State Board for reporting births calls for the place of birth and the length of the mother's stay in the community, and the hospital or institution, if birth occurred in one, before delivery; the usual residence of the mother; the date of the birth, the full name and the sex of the child; whether it was a multiple birth, and if so, the order in which the child was born. It calls for the full maiden name of the mother, whether married, her age at the time of the birth, her color or race, her birthplace and usual occupation, how many other children have been born to her, and how many now are alive and dead. The form also calls for the full name, color or race, birthplace, and usual occupation of the father, and his age at the time of the birth. The form must be certified and signed by the physician, midwife, or other attendant, with the date; must be signed by the local registrar and specify the date received by him, and the date on which the given name of the child is added, if not given in the first instance. On the reverse side of the certificate is space for information for the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., as to any complications of pregnancy or labor, whether there was an operation before delivery, descriptions of any congenital malformations or birth injuries, and the name of the prophylactic drug, if any, used in the baby's eyes.

The law provides that "any physician or midwife in attendance upon a case of confinement, or any other person charged with the responsibility or reporting births . . . who shall neglect or refuse to file a proper certificate of birth with the local registrar within the time required by this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $50 . . . And any person who shall willfully alter any certificate of birth or death, or the copy or record of any certificate of birth or death, on file in the office of the State or local registrars, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding 6 months, or suffer both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. And any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, or who shall neglect or refuse to perform any of the duties imposed upon them by the provisions of this act, or shall furnish false information to a physician, undertaker, midwife, or informant for the purpose of making incorrect certification of births or deaths shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $100."[1]

MARRIAGE RECORDS

Legal requirements for the reporting and recording of marriages in Kansas date back to the beginning of county government in 1855. The first Territorial legislative assembly decreed that every person performing a marriage ceremony should keep a record thereof, and within 3 months forward a certificate to the recorder of the county in which the marriage took place, stating the date of the marriage and the Christian and surnames of the contracting parties. It was the recorder's duty to record each such certificate in a book kept by him for that purpose, within 1 month after its receipt.[1]

The provisions of this act were re-enacted by the assembly of 1859, which however, required that the returns be made to the county clerk rather than to the recorder.[2]

Marriage License Law

But though the recording of marriages was required from the beginning, it was not until 1867 that the contracting parties were required to obtain a license to enter the marriage relation. The State legislature of that year decreed that "if any person empowered by law to join others in marriage shall marry any person before a license, issued by the probate judge of the proper county under his hand and official seal, be produced to him, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000." This section was amended in 1909 to permit marriage under a license issued by any probate judge in the State.[3] The 1867 law required the county clerks to turn over to the probate judges of their respective counties within 30 days all records of marriages in their possession.[4]

The license law provided that every person performing the marriage ceremony should certify, over his proper signature and on the back of the license, the fact of such marriage and the date, and should cause the license to be returned to the probate judge who issued it within 30 days.[5] This procedure was followed until 1913,

SECTION 5. Every person who shall perform any marriage ceremony under the provisions of this act, shall, within ten days after such marriage, return the said license to the probate judge who issued the same with his certificate of such marriage endorsed thereon, etc.

Title.....

Address.....

NOTE.—After recording, the probate judge shall forward this original marriage license to the State Registrar, Topeka, Kan., not later than the third day of following month when the legislature enacted a law requiring that "all marriages occuring within the State shall be registered with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics at the State Capitol."[1] This law specified that every person performing the marriage ceremony should endorse the license and return it within 72 hours to the State Registrar.[2] Four years later the law again was amended to provide that the license be returned within 10 days to the probate judge who issued it, with the certificate of the person performing the ceremony endorsed thereon. The probate judge must "forthwith enter the same on the marriage record in his office," and not later than the third day of each month must forward all licenses and certificates of marriage in his possession to the State Registrar.[3]

State Supervision

The first step toward State supervision of the registration of marriages, in addition to records kept by the probate judges, came in 1885 with the creation of the State Board of Health and the designation of boards of county commissioners as county boards of health for their respective counties. The act provided that the State Board should "supervise the registration of marriages, births, and deaths . . . and the Secretary of said Board shall supervise the registration of the vital statistics of the State." The proper forms for reporting marriages, as well as births and deaths, were forwarded by the State Board to the local health officers, who distributed them to the persons entitled to receive them.[4]

Assessors of personal property also were required to collect, annually, information regarding marriages and report them to the local boards of health, together with information regarding births and deaths.[5] With passage of the vital statistics law of 1911 this law became inoperative so far as births and deaths were concerned, but the assessors continued to report marriages until 1913, when the central registration system was applied to them also.[6] Such returns still are preserved among the records of several Kansas counties.

Marriage Records

The law of 1885 requiring the reporting of marriages to the local boards of health did not, however, in any manner affect the keeping of records by the probate judges under the license law of 1867. This act, which required the county clerk to turn his marriage records over to him,[1] still requires that "the probate judge shall keep a copy of all marriage licenses by him issued, in a book to be provided for that purpose, together with a copy of the return endorsed on such license by the person performing the marriage ceremony, and shall be entitled to receive the sum of one dollar for the same, to be paid by the parties applying for the same."[2]

The fact that the law from 1913 to 1917 required the license to be forwarded direct to the State Registrar by the person performing the ceremony resulted in a break in the probate judge's marriage license record in some counties. The 1913 law, however, provided that "the forms for license shall be furnished by the State Registrar and shall contain a part to be detached and forwarded to the State Registrar by the probate judge as hereinafter provided, and also a part to remain as a stub for the record of the probate judge, in addition to the marriage license to be delivered to the applicant therefore."[3] The portion of the license detached and forwarded to the State Registrar contained in brief those facts set forth in the license itself, together with the name and address of the person expected to perform the ceremony. The probate judge was required to forward these instruments, together with a 50-cent fee for each, to the State Registrar not later than the third day of each month.[4] The State's fee was increased to $1 by the legislature of 1925, which also authorized the probate judge to collect an additional registration fee of $1 from the applicant for the license.[5]

Form of License

The law of 1867 required that the license be in substantially the following form: "Marriage license; name of place where office is located; month, date, 186-. To any person authorized by law to perform the marriage ceremony, greeting: You are hereby authorized to join in marriage A. B., of _____, aged _____, and C. D., of _____,

This form was changed in 1905 to include the name of the parent or guardian consenting to the marriage if the applicants for the license were under the ages of majority, a law of that year prohibiting the probate judge from issuing a license authorizing the marriage of any male person under 21 years old, or female person under 18 years old, without the consent of parents or guardian.[1]

Affidavit Law Enacted

Since 1867 Kansas statutes have declared the marriage contract to be a civil contract, to which the consent of the parties is essential. The marriage ceremony may be regarded either as a civil ceremony or a religious sacrament, but the marriage relation may be entered into, maintained, or abrogated only as provided by law. The statutes provide that "all marriages between parents and children, including grandparents and grandchildren of any degree, between brothers and sisters of the half as well as the whole blood, and between uncles and nieces, aunts and nephews, and first cousins, are declared to be incestuous and absolutely void. This section shall extend to illegitimate as well as to legitimate children and relations."[2]

Under the original law, if the probate judge was in doubt as to the rights of the parties applying for the license to assume the marriage relation, he was authorized to administer oaths and examine witnesses.[3] Since 1886, however, the law has required that "in all cases, before granting a marriage license, the probate judge shall require the applicant for such license to take and subscribe an oath to the effect that none of the reasons as set forth in section 2 of this act exist why such applicant should not be granted a marriage license; and the probate judge may in his discretion examine witnesses under oath concerning the matters referred to . . . and for the purpose of this act shall have power to administer oaths. If the probate judge fails to examine such applicant for license as provided in this section he shall be liable to fine for granting license to parties not legally entitled thereto, in any sum not exceeding $1,000, to be recovered by indictment or information, with costs."[4]

Marriage Records

On the other hand, any probate judge refusing or neglecting to issue a marriage license to any applicant legally entitled thereto, or neglecting to record the license or return endorsed thereon within 30 days after it is returned to him, "shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $1,000, to be recovered with costs for the use of the county."[1]

Every judge, justice of the peace, and licensed preacher of the gospel is authorized to perform the marriage ceremony in Kansas.[2] Marriages contracted without the state, which are valid in the country in which they were contracted, are recognized as valid and binding in Kansas.[3]

Existing Records

In those probate courts where the records are complete, the marriage record is extant from 1855 in the oldest counties, and from the beginning of county government in those counties organized later. The record from 1855 to 1867 consists of copies of the returns of marriages made to the county recorder and the county clerk by persons performing the marriage ceremony, and which were turned over to the probate judge by direction of the law of 1867. From 1867 to date the marriage record usually consists of record copies of the licenses issued, and the returns, or endorsements, of the persons performing the ceremony. The original licenses, returned by persons performing the ceremony, are present until 1913, since which time they have been forwarded to the State Registrar, but thereafter the stubs of licenses are present to date. Some of the older counties also still have the original returns of marriages from 1855 to 1867.

Beginning in 1886 original marriage affidavits are preserved in many probate courts, but record copies of affidavits are present in all probate courts where the records are complete. In most cases the affidavit record has been combined with the license record, especially since 1917. The probate judge's marriage records, or certified copies thereof under his seal, are evidence in all courts.[4]

Marriage Records

It may be assumed that all licenses issued since 1913 are on file with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics at Topeka. The law of 1913 provides that "the State Registrar shall index all records thus received and shall, when applied to, issue a certified copy of the same which shall be prima facie evidence in all courts and places of the facts stated therein, and for which he shall receive a fee of $1." In practice the licenses are filed alphabetically by counties and thereunder numerically by license numbers as they are received in the State Registrar's office. They are indexed in card files alphabetically by names of brides and grooms. Periodically the licenses from each county are bound in volumes of 250 each in numerical order, and filed alphabetically by names of counties. The card indexes then are transcribed into volume form, arranged alphabetically by names of counties, and thereunder alphabetically by names of brides and grooms.

In several counties the original certificates of marriage returned to the local board of health by persons performing the ceremony, under the 1885 registration law, still are preserved for at least some years. Most counties, too, have the record compiled from these returns, usually titled "Record of Vital Statistics," or "Vital Statistics," and including records of births and deaths. This record usually is found in custody of the county clerk, and sometimes of the county health officer, while in other cases it has been turned over to the probate judge, or even the clerk of the county seat town. In a few counties the original returns of the assessors also are preserved.

DEATH RECORDS

No legal provisions for the reporting of deaths, other than a few isolated cases of city ordinances, existed in Kansas prior to 1885. In that year, with creation of the State Board of Health with the provision that it should "supervise the registration of marriages, births, and deaths,"[1] steps were taken to require permits for the interment or removal of dead bodies, and the uniform reporting of deaths by physicians and undertakers.

Boards of county commissioners were designated as local boards of health and required to employ a physician as health officer.[2] The State Board was authorized to prepare the forms for reporting deaths and deliver them to the local health officers for distribution to physicians, assessors, and others whose duty it was to receive them.[3]

The act made it "the duty of every physician practicing his profession in the State of Kansas to keep a record of the deaths occuring in his practice, or that may come to his knowledge where death occurs without medical attendance, noting the form of the disease and as far as possible the cause which produced it, and to report the same to the local board of health where the same occurs, at the time and in the manner prescribed by the State Board of Health; and any failure to do so will subject said physician to a fine of $10 for each and every offense."[4] Assessors of personal property also were required to gather such information, annually, as to marriages, births, and deaths as the State Board might require, and report them to the local board of health, the local health officer being required to report such enrollments to the State Board.[5]

This procedure was followed until 1911, when the present vital statistics law was enacted and a central division of vital statistics created in the State Board of Health.[6] This law requires local registrars to issue burial or removal permits for their respective districts.[7]

It specifies, "That the body of any person whose death occurs in the State shall not be interred, deposited in a vault or tomb, cremated, or otherwise disposed of or removed from or into any registration district until a permit for burial, removal, or other disposition shall have been properly issued by the registrar of the registration district in which the death occurred. And no burial or removal permits shall be issued by any registrar until a complete and satisfactory certificate and return of the death has been filed with him as hereinafter provided. But when a body is removed from a district into an adjacent or nearby district for interment, not requiring the use of a common carrier or the issuance of a removal permit, then the registrar's burial permit from the district where the death occurred may be accepted; Provided, that a removal or transit permit issued in accordance with the law and health regulations of the place where the death occurred, whether in Kansas or outside of the State, shall be accepted by the local registrar of the district where the body is to be interred or finally disposed of, as a basis upon which he shall issue a local burial permit, in the same way as a death occurring in his district, but shall plainly enter upon the face of the copy of the record which he shall make for return to the State Registrar, the fact that it was a body shipped in for interment and give the actual place of death.[1]

"That in case of any death occurring without medical attendance it shall be the duty of the undertaker to notify the registrar of such death. The registrar is authorized to make the certificate and return from the statement of the relatives or other persons having adequate knowledge of the facts: Provided further, that if the circumstances of the case render it probable that the death was caused by unlawful or suspicious means, the registrar shall then refer the case to the coroner for his investigation and certification and the coroner shall state in his certificate the nature of the disease or the manner of death, and if from external causes or violence whether (probably) accidental, suicidal, or homicidal, as determined by the inquest, and shall in either case furnish such information as may be required by the State Registrar to properly classify the death.[2]

"That the undertaker or person acting as undertaker shall be responsible for obtaining and filing the certificate of death with the registrar and securing the burial or removal permit prior to any disposition of the body. He shall obtain the personal and statistical particulars required from the person best qualified to supply them, over the signature and address of his informant. He shall then present the certificate to the attending physician, if any, or to the health officer or coroner, as directed by the registrar, for the medical certificate of the cause of death and other particulars necessary to keep the records as specified in section 6. He shall then state the facts required relative to the date and place of burial, over his signature and with his address, and present the completed certificate to the registrar before the issuance of a burial or removal permit. The undertaker shall deliver the burial permit to the sexton or person in charge of the burial before interring the body, or shall attach the removal and transit permits to the box containing the corpse when shipped by any transportation company, said permit to accompany the corpse to its destination, and where, if within the State, it shall be taken up by the local registrar of the district in which the interment is made, who shall issue a burial permit therefor.[1]

"That no sexton or person in charge of any premises in which interments or other disposition of bodies are made shall inter or permit interment or other disposition of any body unless it is accompanied by a burial permit as herein provided. And each sexton or person in charge of any burial ground shall endorse upon the permit the date of the interment over his signature and shall return all permits so endorsed to the local registrar of the district within 10 days after the date of interment. He shall also keep a record of all interments made in the premises under his charge, stating the name of the deceased person, place of death, date of burial, the name and address of the undertaker, which shall at all times be open to public inspection."[2]

The law provides that "if any physician who was in medical attendance upon any deceased person at the time of death shall neglect or refuse to make out and deliver to the undertaker, sexton, or other person in charge of the interment, removal, or other disposition of the body, upon request, the medical certificates of the cause of death, herein provided for, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $50. And if any physician shall knowingly make a false certification of the cause of death in any case he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $50 nor more than $200 . . . . And if any undertaker, sexton, or other person shall inter, remove, or otherwise dispose of the body of any deceased person without having received a burial or removal permit as herein provided, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $20 nor more than $100. And any registrar or subregistrar who shall neglect or fail to enforce the provisions of this act in his district, or shall neglect or refuse to perform any of the duties imposed upon him by this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100. And any person who shall willfully alter any certificate of birth or death, or the copy or record of any certificate of birth or death on file in the office of the State or local registrars, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemenaor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding 6 months, or suffer both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. And any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, or shall furnish false information to a physician, undertaker, midwife, or informant for the purpose of making incorrect certification of births or deaths, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $100."[1]

The standard certificate of death prescribed by the State Board of Health calls for the place of death, the name of the hospital or institution if death occurred in one, and length of stay in the community; the full name of the deceased, his usual place of residence and, if foreign born, how long in the United States; the sex, race or color, and birth date of the deceased; his social security number, whether single, widowed, married, or divorced; if a veteran, the war in which he served; the age in years, months and days, or if a child of less than 1 day, the age in hours and minutes; the birthplace and usual occupation of the decedent; the names and birthplaces of the father and mother; the signature and address of the informant; the date and place of burial, cremation, or removal, the signature of the funeral director and his address, the date the certificate is received by the local registrar, and his signature. It also has space for the medical certification of the physician showing the dates on which he attended the deceased; the date and immediate cause of death; and if caused by injury, the date, place, and type of place where the injury occurred, and the signature and address of the physician.

Certified copies of certificates of deaths occurring subsequent to 1911 may be obtained from the State Registrar at Topeka for a fee of 50 cents. In many instances certified copies may be obtained from local registrars, though some refer such requests to the State Registrar. Several counties still preserve the certificates of death returned to the local board of health under the law of 1885, and most of them still have the record of such certificates, usually in volumes titled "Vital Statistics," or "Record of Vital Statistics," together with birth and marriage records. In a few instances the returns of assessors also are preserved. Most of the officers having custody of these records will make certified copies for a stipulated fee, and in some cases without charge.

DIVORCE RECORDS

Divorce cases are not reported to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, nor to any other central agency. There is no law governing the recording of divorces specifically, but divorce cases are classified as civil actions and therefor handled as other civil cases by the clerks of district courts. Legal provisions for the recording of civil cases generally date back to Territorial times.

The first Territorial legislative assembly, meeting in 1855, vested jurisdiction in divorce in "any court of chancery," which at that time included both the Supreme Court and the district courts of the Territory.[1] The assembly of 1859 decreed that "the district (court) in the county where the plaintiff resides has jurisdiction of all cases of divorce and alimony, and of guardianships connected therewith."[2] The State Constitution, which became effective January 29, 1861 with the beginning of statehood, provides that "all power to grant divorces is vested in the district courts, subject to regulation by law."[3]

There is no record that the Kansas Supreme Court ever granted a divorce decree. However, although jurisdiction was vested in the Supreme Court and district courts from the beginning, the Territorial legislative assemblies of 1858, 1859, 1860, and 1861 granted several divorce decrees by special enactment.[4]

In so far as the keeping of records is concerned the statutes make no distinction between divorce cases and other civil actions. A civil action may be commenced in the district court by filing a petition with the clerk and causing a summons to be issued thereon. The clerk must enter all actions on the appearance docket as soon as they are filed, and also all subsequent pleadings, process, orders, and judgments in the case.[5] It is the duty of the clerk of the court to "file together and carefully preserve in his office all papers delivered to him for that purpose in every action or special proceeding. He shall keep the papers in each case separate, carefully enveloped in a wrapper, labeled with the title of the cause. He shall endorse on every paper filed by him the day of filing it, and upon every order for a provisional remedy, and upon every undertaking given under the same, the day of its return to his office. He shall, upon the return of every summons served, enter upon the appearance docket the name of the defendant or defendants summoned, and the day of the service upon each one. The entry shall be evidence of the service of the summons in case of the loss thereof. He shall keep the records and books and papers pertaining to the court and record its proceedings."[1] The law provides that "on the journal shall be entered the proceedings of the court each day and all orders of the judge in vacation or at chambers."[2]

In practice, the clerks of the district courts in Kansas file cases in numerical order, regardless of the nature of the action, except that in most courts the civil and criminal cases are kept separately. Entries in the appearance docket and the journal are made in the same manner. The original decree of divorce, or a copy thereof, is spread in full on the journal.
